Booklist Reviews: See's writing is intricate and graceful, and her attention to detail never wavers, making for a lush, involving reading experience...

Kirkus Reviews: A nuanced exploration of women's friendship and women's writing in a remote corner of Imperial China....

Library Journal Reviews: In 19th-century China, girls with bound feet were often paired in lifelong relationships and in one locale even devised their own language. See tells us the story of one pair who inscribed secret letters on fans and very nearly lost each other through a terrible misunderstanding....
